Articles

Amalgam Fillings: Do Dental Patients Have a Right to Informed Consent?

Reviews the controversial history of amalgam fillings through recent animal studies and FDA attention. Argues that health risks warrant permitting patients to choose alternative materials.

Michael A. Royal . . . . . 141

Can an Economic Approach Solve the High-Level Nuclear Waste Problem?

Proposes and argues for a non-coercive siting strategy that he calls a "reverse Dutch auction."

Herbert Inhaber . . . . . 341

The Cognitive Status of Risk: A Response to Thompson

Discusses the role of probability theory in risk analysis and management. Argues against putting too much emphasis on the distinction between risk subjectivism and risk objectivism.

L. James Valverde A., Jr. . . . . 313

Doctors at Risk: A Problem as Viewed by Decision Analysis

Based on a case analysis, argues that the regulatory scheme for medical peer review fails to encourage cost effective behavior and may decrease the quality of medical care.

Leonard P. Caccamo, Kimbroe J. Carter, Barbara A.

Erickson, William R. Johnson and Edward Kessler . . . 357

An Empirical Analysis of the Medical Informed Consent Doctrine: Search for a "Standard" of Disclosure

Discusses and evaluates the informed consent doctrine in tort cases. Concludes that it is difficult to decide what must be disclosed and argues that much remains to be done to achieve its objectives.

Jon F. Merz . . . . . 27

Fertile Women May Now Apply: Fetal Protection Policies After Johnson Controls

Looks at a recent sex discrimination case from a broad legal and social perspective.

Barbara Ruhe Grumet . . . . . 261

Predictive Probabilities in Employee Drug-Testing

Urges caution in attempting to reduce workplace substance abuse. Cites commonly high frequencies of error and discusses the potential for injustice.

John M. Gleason and Darold T. Barnum . . . . . 3

Public Participation in Hazard Management: The Use of Citizen Panels in the U.S.

Discusses a method of facilitating citizen participation as developed in Germany and its modification and use in the U.S.
Ortwin Renn, Thomas Webler and Branden B. Johnson . 197

Regulating Air Toxics in Rhode Island: Policy vs. Technical Decisions

Recounts work in developing standards for airborne carcinogens and argues that care be taken lest key policy decisions be buried by often irrelevant technical details.
Julie A. Roqué . . . . . 123

Regulation vs. the Market: The Case of Bicycle Safety

Describes events leading to the creation of the Consumer Product Safety Commission's bicycle standard. Concludes that bicycle regulation has failed to be as effective as other forces in reducing injuries.
Ross D. Petty . . . . . 77, 93

Risk Assessment for Developmental Toxicity: Airborne Occupational Exposure to Ethanol and Iodine

Explains and illustrates the basic steps in fetal risk assessment. Argues that rigorous examination must precede informed choice.
Donald R. Mattison . . . . . 227

Risk Perception and Drug Safety Evaluation

Presents a framework for more effective risk communication based on empirical research concerning public risk perceptions and applies it to pharmaceutical regulation.
Ilan B. Vertinsky and Donald A. Wehrung . . . . . 281
